About Me: As a freelance teacher in West Michigan I teach a variety of subjects including: music/percussion, apologetics, Biblical Greek as well as driver's training. I completed a B.A. from Indiana Wesleyan University in 2008 with an emphasis in percussion performance. Currently, I'm finishing up a Master of Arts in Christian Apologetics from Liberty University.

About the class: *from the preface

“Understanding the Faith is a fast-track, fast-paced theological education for those who want to understand God and his world in a profound way and share their faith intelligently with unbelievers. Theology and apologetics aren't just academic exercises for pastors and church leaders; we are all “ambassadors for Christ” (2 Cor. 5:20) charged with giving “reason[s] for the hope” we have in him (1 Peter. 3:15). Pressing questions about life and faith deserve thoughtful answers.”
